

At this time it is well to note that the people of England by their vote show that they stand for conservatism. Russia propagandists and others in their efforts to overthrow sane government have failed. America will give her answer on Tuesday next. The people of the world have in their minds the Russian horrors, the destruction and tearing down of all safeties of the people, the destruction of the churches and all religious organization. It is well at this time to search out and follow the true leaders of the people.

PORTSMOUTH HAS BIG G. O. P. RALLY AT MUSIC HALL

Fine Address Delivered By Capt. John G. Winant, Hon. Fletcher Hale and Ralph R. Lounsbury of New York

Capt. John G. Winant of Concord, Republican candidate for governor of New Hampshire, made his first appearance at a Portsmouth political rally at the Portsmouth theatre last evening and was given a fine reception and made a good impression on the audience which packed every available space in the theatre. Mr. Winant confined himself entirely to the state issues and during the course of his remarks admitted that Governor Brown had made a good governor, but said that when he claimed all the credit for reducing the state debt, he was stealing the credit that belongs to his predecessor, Gov. Albert Brown, a Republican governor whose far-seeing and intimate knowledge of state finances and taxation and his great energy during his term of office brought about the reduction in the state tax and it would have been made regardless of who was governor the last two years.

Who Presided at Republican Rally

Mr. Winant impressed one with his sincerity and held the close attention of the audience. He took up the various matters of the state, paying special attention to the need of a continuation of the Republican policies in the state and the need of not only electing the governor but both branches of the Legislature. He advocated the 48-hour law and maintained that it was a policy that he had worked for ever since he had been active in politics. He believes that it is something that the states owe the women and children and maintained that the Re-

CONSERVATIVES WIN SWEEPING VICTORY IN GREAT BRITAIN

Have Strongest Majority Recorded During Past Century

(By Associated Press)
London, Oct. 30.—The people of Great Britain have put a crushing end to their first experiment with a Labor government by returning the Conservative party to power in Parliament with one of the strongest majorities recorded during the last century. In this sweeping political change the Liberal party has sunk to the weakest position it has experienced since the alignment of British political parties more than 80 years ago at the time of the Reform Bill. With 545 out of the 15 seats in the House of Commons accounted for at 4 o'clock this afternoon the Liberals had won only 37 and the Conservatives had captured 359 and were increasing their lead constantly as the returns came in from the country districts. Labor had won 130 states and was thus assured of being the official opposition party in the new Parliament.

MURDER SUSPECT TAKES OWN LIFE

Body of Frank Thomas, Whose Wife Was Mysteriously Slain, Found Hanging in Cell

(By Associated Press)
Belvidere, N. J., Oct. 30.—The body of Frank Thomas held in jail here as a material witness in the slaying of his wife, Mrs. Grace Thomas, was found hanging in his cell in the Warren county jail here today by Warden Smith. Thomas had hanged himself by his suspenders. The body of his wife was found in an abandoned iron mine near Oxford on Tuesday. Thomas was to have been transferred to the Flemington jail in Hunterdon today. It was planned to formally charge him with murder. Authorities investigating the murder of Mrs. Thomas in connection with which her husband had been held without bail, said today that two witnesses had told them of seeing a dilapidated automobile containing two men drive through Oxford on the road leading to the old iron mine on Sunday night about dusk. Both witnesses reported seeing burly bags in the rear of the car. With the chief suspects, suicide having closed that end of the case the authorities today said they would continue their investigations to establish the identity of the second man in the automobile which they said they believed carried the woman's body to the spot where it was found beneath burly bags Tuesday morning.

The Portsmouth Power Co. has purchased the entire cold storage plant subject to proper title conveyance. This will mean an opportunity to enlarge the present power plant to practically twice its size. Some time ago The Herald stated that Portsmouth would be the home of one of the greatest power plants in the country. According to National plans it is in the great New England-Atlantic coast tie-up of all power plants for the interchange and exchange of the electrical commodity. This purchase will also give the local power company wonderful coal storage capacity.

BOMB KILLS EIGHT ON CANADIAN TRAIN

Police Believe Attempt to Take Life of One Man Caused Tragedy

(By Associated Press)
Nelson, B. C., Oct. 30.—Peter Veregin, leader of the Donkhouber colony in Saskatchewan, paid for his progressive methods with his life yesterday when an enemy opposed to Veregin's use of modern appliances on farms and homes in the colony placed a bomb under his feet in a Canadian Pacific passenger coach while the train was speeding from Nelson to Grand Forks, B. C., according to the theory advanced today by police investigators. The explosion killed eight and injured 12 passengers on the train. Railway officials working with police on the case believe the explosion resulted from a time bomb or the jarring of dynamite carried in a gunny sack. Included in the list of dead was the name of John L. Mackie, member of the British Columbia legislature from Grand Forks.

FAST GROWTH FOR RADIO

To say that radio grew overnight is not exaggeration to any great extent. As men reckon years, it was only an insignificantly short time ago that KDKA, the pioneer broadcasting station of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at East Pittsburgh, sent out what was the first public radio broadcast.

Radio experts, men who played with electricity, scientifically inclined people, those with a hankering for electrical mysteries, marvelled at the apparatus by means of which the voice of a singer was hurled out into space and made audible and enjoyable to countless thousands miles away.

KDKA's apparatus at that time represented the last word in scientific accomplishment. It was the best that human mind could conceive for the purpose a few years ago. Even hearing the singing voice was not sufficient proof that the broadcast had been effected. Many thought it was another fantastic dream.

The public that shared that first broadcast was immensely pleased with the entertainment afforded them in the solitude and comfort of their homes and the easiness of their lounge robes. They did not have to leave their families to seek a musical show or hear the voice of some national celebrity.

In the light of subsequent developments it now seems wonderful that, with the equipment then at hand, any degree of success was obtained.

It was in September, 1921, that New England got its first real test of broadcasting; that is, a test which was attended by considerable publicity, thus being impressed upon the minds of thousands who heretofore had not shown the slightest interest in radio. WBZ, the Westinghouse station in Springfield, sent out its first real programme. All the Governors of New England were assembled at the Eastern States Exposition in Springfield, and it was considered an auspicious time to inaugurate the WBZ station.

Announcements in those days ran something like this: "Hello, Hello, WBZ talking, the radio broadcasting station of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company at Springfield, Mass."

"We are sending out concerts or entertainments by radio telephone on three evenings each week, namely, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 8 o'clock until 9 o'clock p. m., on a wave length of approximately 425 metres."

And what a difference in the manner of station publicity and advertising. In those days, at the conclusion of each entertainment, the name of the agent handling the Westinghouse radio apparatus was announced, together with his address and telephone number, and words to the effect that all inquiries regarding radio equipment should be addressed to him.

Load Million Cars in Week

Washington.—A new high record for loading freight cars with its accompanying indication of business conditions, was made by American railroads during the week ended Oct. 28. During that week 1,102,236 cars were loaded with revenue freight, exceeding by more than 8000 cars the previous high record for 1923. On one day alone, Oct. 15, the railroads moved 1,030,211 cars, both loaded and empty, which if made up into one solid train would have reached from New York to San Francisco and return and then back to Omaha.

In a report issued this week the American Railway Association declares that while the weekly record of American railroading was being surpassed the movement of freights were carried on without congestion or car shortage and that there are 100,000 serviceable freight cars and 5,400 locomotives in surplus reserve.

UNIVERSALIST HAPPENINGS

The canvassers of the Every Member Canvass have brought from their first solicitation a return of substantial increase over the entire subscription of last year, which in itself was a twenty per cent increase over the year before. A company of merry making young people of the upper classes of the church school and their friends made a festive evening at their Halloween Party on Tuesday. Refreshments were served by the teachers. The growing and active Lend-A-Hand had charge of the decorations and games,

NEWS ITEMS FROM
TRAIP ACADEMY

This will be a short week for four of the instructors will attend the Maine state convention which is to be held today, Friday and Saturday. We trust they will come back with increased confidence and with new plans for the improvement of the school.

On account of the convention there will be no football game on Saturday, but the return game with York will be played on the following Wednesday. Coach Putnam is giving the squad some hard workouts in hopes of putting the game across in good shape; on the other hand the York men are dead at work. It's going to be the best game so far this season. It's got to be. Let's go.

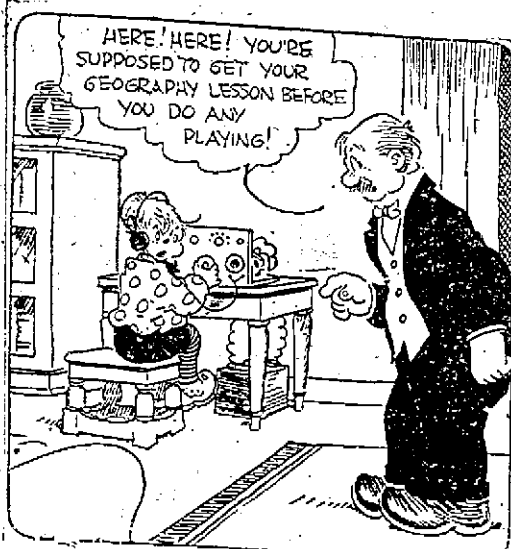

Test time is here again. Since this week is only half a week, half the tests were given Wednesday and the other half will be given next Monday. Monthly tests were instituted last year by Principal Blanchard and take the place of the mid-year and final examinations. The students appreciate this system for it is less of a strain on them and permits them to ascertain exactly how they stand every month.

Many of the students took advantage of Navy Day and made a tour of the navy yard where something of interest was going on every moment. Who originated the plans for Navy Day is due a vote of thanks from all who are interested in the welfare of their country. It has brought about a fuller conception of the workings of the Navy department; it has helped us to realize that, as President Coolidge so aptly expressed it, "a people who neglect their national defense are putting in jeopardy their national honor."

Traip Academy, in collaboration with seven other high schools and academies in York county, is to publish a monthly magazine, The York County School News, which will contain all the news from these schools each month and in addition will have short stories, jokes and all things that tend to make such a magazine a success. The Traip editorial board as elected by the Student Council is as follows:

Editor in chief, Miss Pike.
Assistant editor, Miss Ruth Miller.

Literary editor (seniors and juniors) Perry.

Literary editor (sophomores and freshmen), Miss Grace.

Business manager, Catlin.

Asst. business manager, William Brooks and Chandler.

Social and news editor, Miss Muriel Morrow.

Alumni editor, Miss Farr.

Exchanges, Miss Young.

Jokes, Mullen.

Faculty advisers, Miss Haman and Mrs. Blanchard.

Besides these, two class reporters have been chosen by each of the respective classes.

The editing of this paper is a new adventure for Traip for, although a yearly magazine has been published lately, this is the first time in recent years that such a thing has been attempted. Traip has been allotted 12 pages of the magazine and 40 per cent of the advertising—more than that of any other school. This means what every true citizen of Kittery enjoys—a boost for Traip.

There Is a Reason

This world is full of proverbs, maxims, adages culled by wise men who tell their long experiences in short sentences.

They are not new. You know them. Especially common are:

"The apparel oft proclaims the man."

"Clothes make the man."

"Dress changes the manners."

"Dress better, feel better."

And many others. Every book of proverbs, every collection of wise sayings, give many pages over to advice on being well dressed.

There's a reason. Wise men for centuries have appreciated the wisdom of an attractive appearance and have known:

That appearance is a mirror that reveals the man.

That dress is a table of human contents.

That polished brass passes more readily than rough gold.

That royal dignity is made by garb—that robes make a king and rags a rogue.

Heroism

We are apt to associate heroism with great and stirring events on which is centered the spotlight of human interest and attention, catastrophes of wreck and fire, flood and war. The popular hero leaps out before the public eye in some spectacular deed of sacrifice or rescue.

But there are other heroes, heroes sadly unappreciated and unsung, heroes for whom there are no medals, no Distinguished Service Crosses. There is the telephone operator. How often in flood and fire she has remained at her switchboard at the imminent peril of life and limb. Nothing stirring or spectacular about it, just sticking on the job, sticking because of the knowledge that the line of communication is of vital importance.

The postal service is another everyday job where great heroism is displayed. The carriers of the government's mail bags may not delay for any vicissitude of wind or weather. Fire and flood, blizzards, snowslides, ice packs and ice floes are part of the daily routine. Many lives are lost here. But another steps into the vacant place and tomorrow's mail is delivered if it is humanly possible.

The Sun of New York city carries a single item which reflects this spirit of heroism and self-sacrifice that actuates all great accomplishments. Thirty to forty girls in an exchange in the crowded Wall street district remained at their posts virtually surrounded by fire without excitement or confusion. The same day this paper notes that the lives of 55 mail carriers were lost in the past thirty months.

Yet these deeds of heroism are unsung, and no golden pen on this earth will record their sacrifice.

Parental Licenses

Dr. Hornell Hart, professor of social economy in Bryn Mawr College, says some day there will have to be licenses for parenthood, just as there are now licenses for professions and trades. The prospective parent will have to prove that he is a fit person for the job of having children and caring for them, just as the plumber must prove now that he has the necessary skill for his calling.

This is necessary, says Prof. Hart, because "the race is fast going down hill," and the deterioration cannot be checked without scientific methods of racial continuation. "As it is now, persons least able, intellectually and materially, to provide for children, are having 'rafts of them,' and persons qualified to surround their children with the proper environment are having very few." The same is often true as regards physical factors—too much bodily defectiveness is being passed along to succeeding generations.

It all sounds reasonable enough, but it will be long before men and women will acknowledge the right of society as a whole to determine this matter for them.

No Tired Business Men

A. E. Wiggam, author of the non-fiction best seller "The New Decalogue of Science," recently made a few pointed remarks about the "tired business man." That individual, he says, will some day be as legendary as the dodo. It appears that the "t. b. m." doesn't even exist now, because he isn't "tired" at all. He is sick.

According to Mr. Wiggam, "he hasn't lived hygienically." If he would just learn to do this, he would be fresh and fit all the time, able to do his work comfortably, with only a normal amount of fatigue which could be removed promptly when the day's work was done.

There is much truth in this. The people who accomplish a generous amount of work and yet seem always well and energetic and interested are usually those who live sanely and "hygienically." They do not neglect either work or play; they are not faddists in diet and physical culture, but they are sensible about their bodily and mental needs.

Unfortunately there are too few such persons at present. And so the tiredness persists, the reasons for it are undiscovered, and a good deal of nervous strain and ill health are suffered needlessly.

Motor Street Cars

Enormous double-deck busses are being introduced now in several American cities. They are built on the English type with open-air seats above and sheltered seats below, the entrance being from the rear and the upper deck reached by a stairway. Every bus has a conductor as well as a driver, and will seat 66 passengers.

It is a natural development. From little busses we come, by swift stages, to super-busses. From a traffic viewpoint, however, it is hard to grow enthusiastic over these huge conveyances, for use in any city possessing a trolley system.

They are as big as street cars, and nearly as heavy. They are sure to work havoc with any pavement that lacks an extra thick and strong foundation, and to interfere with the normal movement of automobiles. Why not stick to the two normal types of motor car and trolley car, without trying to combine the two?

ARREST YOUTH AS ALLEGED AUTO THIEF

Dorset, Oct. 29.—Philip B. Allen, 21, a Stratford youth who left that town on Oct. 29 with a new automobile belonging to it is alleged, to T. W. Dowling, his employer, is under arrest at Genesee, N. Y. The Stratford County authorities received word from Buffalo that Allen would be prosecuted there on the charge of larceny of the car.

Allen was arrested for driving without a license, but questioning elicited from him the alleged confession that he stole the automobile in Stratford. He told the police that he concealed the car in a barn in the Stratford woods until last week, when he started for Detroit, where he had obtained a job.

The New York officials reported that the Dowling car had been released to the company which had insured it against theft.

ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE IN KITTERY

Alleged He Left Wife in Philadelphia and Married Another in Kittery

Ernest F. T. Law, a machinist, was arrested in Kittery this forenoon on a serious charge. It is alleged that he left his wife and two children in Philadelphia, in the fall of 1919, and that shortly after arriving there he married a Kittery girl, Miss Cora Colby.

The police could find no record of his marriage in Kittery, and so a warrant was issued charging him with a statutory offense, which charge may later be changed to polygamy.

He was locked up by Officers Blake and Smart of the Kittery force, and will be arraigned later in the Kittery court.

According to information received the county attorney from Philadelphia, Law was married in Wilmington, Del., back in 1908.

Of all the ardent motorists in Indianapolis, Ind., there is none more enthusiastic than Billy, pet name of Carl Reed. Whenever Reed starts for his garage, Billy races at his heels, slips through the open door and lightly mounts his special roost on the radiator cap. The faster the car goes the better he likes it. Billy has furnished countless surprises to people who thought Reed had mounted an inanimate weather cock on his car by constantly giving evidence that he is very much alive.

YARD WILL NOT CLOSE HALF DAY ON ELECTION DAY

Not Approved by the Navy Department and Order Was Changed Today

It appears that the Navy Department does not approve of a half day off with pay for yard employees on Election day, Nov. 4, and consequently the previous bulletin to that effect has been cancelled and other arrangements made. It is understood that voters who reside in Portsmouth, Kittery, Elliot and New Castle will be allowed two hours and others residing elsewhere time not exceeding four hours. The commandant ordered the second notice posted this afternoon.

A public party is the only one that can put it in force. He said he was confident that the old Granite State would roll up a fine Republican majority for the entire ticket and that Coolidge would be given a Republican supporting Congress.

Mr. Winant said in part: "The present governor is going about the state placing the responsibility for his failure to make good his pre-election promises of two years ago on the Republican majority in the state Senate. Whether or not the blame should be placed upon the Republican senators or upon the arrogant assumption of priority by the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives is a debatable question. And that is not the question that should interest the voters of New Hampshire in determining how they shall vote next Tuesday. What they should be concerned about is whether or not the deadlock which prevented any united action in the 1923 Legislature is to be continued in the 1925 Legislature."

"It is inevitable with a Democratic House and a Republican Senate, each, possibly, striving to gain partisan advantage, that there cannot be expected any harmonious action on controversial policies. This was demonstrated in the many abortive measures started in one or the other legislative branch at the last session. Furthermore proof of the ineffectiveness of divided power is shown in the conflict between the Democratic governor and the Republican executive councilors, who are unable to reach any common ground. As a natural result of this condition of affairs there are a number of important official posts in the state government vacant, because the officials vested with the appointive power cannot agree upon persons for the positions."

"The entire strategy of the Democratic campaign is to bring about a continuation of this unsatisfactory situation. No hope is indulged that it is possible to elect a majority of the councilors who would act in harmony with a Democratic governor. Nor is there any expectation that a Democratic majority is possible in both branches of the Legislature."

"The decision, then, that rests with the voters, is whether they want a state government in which the different branches can work together harmoniously toward a common end, or desire two years more of the various executive and administrative branches working at cross purposes. If the Republicans are given undivided power, I can promise you sincere efforts to improve conditions along constructive lines. I believe that unless the Republicans are returned to complete control of state affairs we shall see again all real programs blocked through the absence of any consistent state policy. I hope that all Republicans will take these matters into careful consideration when they cast their ballots for state and local candidates next Tuesday."

Harry W. Peyser made a good presiding officer and introduced as the second speaker Hon. Fletcher Hale of Laconia, Republican candidate for Congress from the first district. Mr. Hale spoke at some length on state issues and then went on to National issues and stressed the great need of giving President Coolidge a supporting Congress. He said that he expected to be elected and it elected would support the President. He touched on the tariff and the foreign policy of the present administration and pointed out the many great things that President Coolidge has done during his terms of office and said that there was little question but what the people of this country who want common-sense in their administration of the government, as well as in their own personal affairs, would see that President Coolidge is re-elected.

Both speakers referred to the excellent record of Senator Henry W. Payne in the U. S. Senate and of his support of the President and urged that the voters see that he is sent back to ably represent the state for the next six years.

The last speaker was Congressman Ralph R. Lounsbury of New York, who urged the voters of this state to see that the President has a united Republican delegation from this state and of the great need of seeing that Senator Keyes is returned and that Mr. Hale is elected. Mr. Lounsbury devoted most of his address to the National issues and dwelt on the question of honesty that has been raised by John R. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, and said he was sure that the people of the country would answer this question by confirming their great belief in President Coolidge next Tuesday. He spoke of the great reduction of the Nation's debt under the present administration and of the wonderful success of the budget system and predicted that if Mr. Coolidge is given a supporting Congress there will be still further reduction of taxes and National debt. He dwelt but lightly on the third party movement but said that LaFollette was a sham and not to be taken seriously.

There was a gathering of the speakers and leading Republicans at the Rockingham Hotel and, led by the Portsmouth City Band, a large number of marchers escorted the speakers to the hall with the usual red fire. Among the marchers were a number of women.

DEATH TAKES NOTED NOVELIST

New York, Oct. 30.—Frances Hodgson Burnett, author and playwright, known particularly for her novel and play "Little Lord Fauntleroy," died last night at her home, Planchette Park, at Plandome, L. I. She was 75 years old and had been in poor health for several months.

Two months ago, when the last of her novels, "Head of the House of Coombe" was published, Mrs. Burnett Townsend had written more than a score of novels, six plays and was editor of "The Children's Book."

Stephen Townsend, whom she married for her second husband, in 1904, collaborated with her in many plays. After Mr. Townsend's death in 1914, she chose to retain the name of her first husband as the one by which she was best known.

Why Do Women Prefer M. & M. Bread

We made it a point to find out, so stood in a large local Grocery store and Found Out. Eleven women who bought bread asked for M. & M. Bread; two specified another brand, and three just asked for "a loaf of bread." And here were the reasons the eleven women gave.

Because it's always Fresh.
Because of its flavor.
Because it's always the same.
Because it's like my own.
Because of its Purity.

And they all agreed that it was the combination of all the above features that has made it the favorite whenever sold.

SANBORN WINS FROM EXETER

Kington, Oct. 30—Manfreda, star halfback of Sanborn Seminary, turned what looked like a scoreless tie with Exeter high school into a 10 to 0 win for Sanborn when he crossed the goal line for a touchdown, kicked the goal and then booted a field goal in the last period of the game between the two teams here this afternoon.

Manfreda's long gaudy runs with the help of some successful forward passes, paved the way for the Sanborn scores. Captain Marcotte's work at quarterback and McCarthy's playing at right end were also big factors in the victory of the local team. Winkler, Exeter's fullback was the star for his team, making several long gains. The summary:

How to Remove Unightly Hair Safely --Roots and All

No need now to undergo painful electric treatments to remove superfluous hair; nor to apply ordinary ineffective hair removers which only remove surface hairs. A marvelous new oriental balm has been discovered which is applied almost as easily as cold cream. It penetrates towards the hair roots, and gently "eases out" every objectionable hair, root and all, and leaves the skin clear white, healthy and soft as velvet. No muss. No odor. No growing back of hair stronger than ever. Absolutely harmless. Karma, as this wonderful new discovery is called, is highly recommended by prominent beauty specialists and is sold by all good dealers, such as G. E. Philbrick, Boardman & Norton, Adams' Drug Store, F. B. Coleman.

BODY WAS SENT TO WRONG PLACE WIFE SUES AND GETS $12,000

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Mrs. Laura Metcalfe has been awarded a judgment for $12,000 by a jury in the Christian county circuit court against the Western Kentucky State Hospital, the University of Louisville and Dr. W. W. Durham, superintendent of the hospital.

She charged that the body of her husband, who was the Rev. E. N. Metcalfe, formerly one of the leading Methodist ministers in the state and who died in the state hospital, was sent by error to the University of Louisville to be used for dissecting experiments by students.

Mrs. Metcalfe had been awarded $18,000 at a former trial of the case, but the trial judge set this verdict aside as excessive. She had sued for $25,000.

The Rev. Mr. Metcalfe, whose mind failed after a long service in his church, died December 12, 1922. The body was sent to the University of Louisville and later was ordered shipped to Paducah when the widow asked for its delivery.

The body delivered to Mrs. Metcalfe was that of a man other than the late pastor. The stranger's body was returned to Louisville and the Rev. Mr. Metcalfe's body was located and sent the widow and burial followed.

Mrs. Metcalfe says she was notified properly of the death of her husband, to which hospital authorities complained that when the body of her husband was received by her one of the hands had been injured.

Tell How They Stand on Important Questions in Answer to Women's Community Council

The Women's Community Council, representing all women's organizations in the city, desiring to inform itself on the position taken on three questions by candidates for election to the state legislature, sent out a questionnaire. Answers received to date are as follows:

Dr. Samuel T. Ladd—I am in favor of ratifying the proposed constitutional amendment enabling Congress to pass a law regulating child labor. I am in favor of enactment by the state of a 48-hour law for industrial women, children. I am in favor of strict enforcement of the Volstead Act.

F. W. Caswell—I am not in favor of ratifying the proposed constitutional amendment enabling Congress to pass a law regulating child labor. I am in favor of enactment by the state of a 48-hour law for industrial women. I am in favor of strict enforcement of the Volstead Act.

William J. Linchey—I am in favor of ratifying the proposed constitutional amendment enabling Congress to pass a law regulating child labor. I am in favor of enactment by the state of a 48-hour law for industrial women. Under present conditions I believe in modification of the Volstead Act.

Harold M. Smith—The Republican platform endorses the child labor measure. If elected I shall stand by the platform. Under present conditions I am personally in favor of the 48-hour law. Mr. Winant, the Republican candidate for Governor, is making the 48-hour law an issue of his campaign. I propose, if elected, to co-operate with Mr. Winant in every way possible. The Volstead Act is a National law, and as a citizen I am in favor of its strict enforcement.

hour law for industrial women. I am in favor of strict enforcement of the Volstead Act.

SEWALL HAD A FINE RECORD

Harold M. Sewall, Republican National Committee man from Maine, who died in New York Tuesday following an operation, had an excellent record. He was born in Bath, Me., Jan. 2, 1860, a son of Arthur and Elmina D. (Crocker) Sewall. For many years his father was not only the leading New England shipbuilder, but the most prominent Democrat in Maine.

The younger Sewall was graduated from Harvard University in 1882, receiving his law degree three years later from the Harvard law school. That same year, 1885, he was appointed by the Cleveland administration vice-consul at Liverpool and two years later became consul-general at Samoa. In 1889, having been opposed to the action of Germany in seizing the Samoan Islands and deposing the King, and disagreeing thoroughly with the foreign policy of the Cleveland administration, especially as concerned Samoa and Hawaii, he resigned his post and came home.

So strong was his resentment against the Democratic administration's handling of foreign affairs that he left his party and stamped for Harrison in the succeeding presidential campaign. Harrison rewarded him by appointing him, in 1893, a member of the commission which negotiated the Berlin treaty for the joint government of Samoa by the powers, and soon afterward reappointed him consul-general at Samoa.

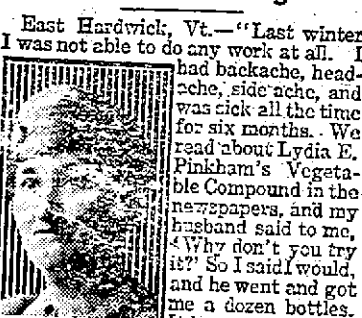

At the end of the Harrison administration in 1892 he resigned his post and began practicing law in Maine. Soon he was in the thick of Republican politics in his state. In 1896 he was elected a member of the Maine House of Representatives there, also chairman of the Republican state convention and a delegate to the Republican national convention. That same year his father was nominated for vice president as running mate with Bryan.

The following year, 1897, he was appointed by President McKinley as United States minister to Hawaii, and in 1898 received the transfer of the island's sovereignty to the United States and afterwards acted as special agent of the United States until the organization of the territory. He was the first member of the Republican national committee from Hawaii.

From 1893 to 1907 he was a member of the Maine House of Representatives, and a state senator for the next two years. In 1910 he was defeated for the Republican nomination for Congress, and in 1914 obtained the nomination, but was defeated by a division in the Republican party. In 1915 he was appointed a member

HUSBAND SAID WHY NOT TRY IT

Wife Said She Would Result, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong

East Hardwick, Vt.—"Last winter I was not able to do any work at all. I had backache, headache, sideache, and was sick all the time for six months. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers, and my husband said to me, 'Why don't you try it?' So I said I would, and he went and got me a dozen bottles. It has done me more good than I can ever tell, and my friends say, 'What have you done to yourself? You look so well. I tell them it is the Vegetable Compound that makes me so well and strong. There is no use to suffer with backache and pains. I will tell every one what it has done for me.'"

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so ill that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their household duties. of the Maine commission to the Panama-Pacific exposition. He was a delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention in 1916 and later became a member of the Republican national committee. Gov. Milliken appointed him chairman of the Maine committee of public safety in 1917.

Also in 1921 he was made a member of the advisory committee of the conference for the limitation of armament. He was a member of the American Antiquarian Society.

MEN WORE BOY BOBS

(By Associated Press) Greenwich, Conn., Oct. 30.—The appearance of many men about town with pronounced "boy bobs" instead of the regulation male haircut, was explained yesterday when Mrs. Theresa Allen, manicurist, was arraigned for barbering without a state license. The warrant was issued, it is stated, on complaint of the licensed male barbers of Greenwich to the state barber commission after they had investigated a falling off in the male patronage of their shops. Mrs. Allen secured a continuance of her case in court until Monday in order to secure counsel.

DEATH OF HORSES LAID TO "CANNED HEAT" Bladeford, Me., Oct. 30.—While "canned heat" is consumed without fatal results by local inebriates, it probably caused the death of two horses owned by James E. Gowen, an expressman. After the animals had been watered at a trough near their stable they became violently ill and died shortly after.

The trough is a favorite spot for drinkers of "canned heat." The alcohol is secured by straining the mixture through a cloth. It is believed that some of the "canned heat" drained into the trough and poisoned the water. Six empty "canned heat" cans were found near the trough.

MUCH DAMAGE TO SHIPPING

(By Associated Press) San Francisco, Oct. 30.—Largely as a result of storms sweeping inland from the north Pacific ocean the last three days several coastwise vessels were in difficulties today. The motor ship Shark, a 64 ton craft, was reported on the rocks on the northern California coast near the Oregon border. The crew was not believed to be in immediate danger. Further north the lumber schooner Trinidad was stalled with a broken rudder. From Point Lobos came the report that the French schooner Roy Somers had suffered damage to steering gear and other equipment and was being towed to port by a tug. The tanker Alden Anderson of the associated oil company was burned at Avon about 18 miles northeast of Oakland. Report said several members of the crew jumped overboard and six had not been accounted for. Damage to the ship and surrounding property was placed at $1,000,000.

COOLIDGE LEADS DARTMOUTH VOTE

HOW WE ELECT OUR PRESIDENTS

What Happens When Electoral College Fails to Produce Majority

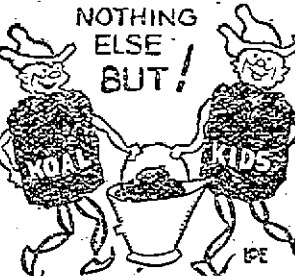

How do we elect a President? Generally the doings of the Electoral College occupy about as important a place in the public thought as the methods for choosing the second assistant lord high executioner of Erewhon. The voters mark their ballots on a November Tuesday, and a few hours afterward the newspapers announce the election of the next President. Later the Electoral College in effect rubber-stamps the choice and usually fails to make the front page.

This year, however, because of the much-talked-of possibility that the election may be thrown into Congress—a thing which has not happened for a century—and even then the House of Representatives may also fail to choose one of the three Presidential candidates and leave it to the Senate to select from two of the Vice Presidential candidates the man who will be the next chief executive, there is much interest in the mechanics of our Presidential elections.

As every one who has voted knows you do not cast your vote directly for the man you wish to become President. Instead you vote for a group of "Presidential electors" who are mor-

Indiana Leader In Lower Branch Of Congress Handling Speakers For National Coolidge Campaign

Successful national political campaigns are not carried on by hit-or-miss organizations. The party hoping for victory in November must build a thorough, efficient organization early in the campaign—a machine whose various departments are perfectly coordinated and well managed.

No phase of a campaign is more important than that having to do with the speakers, the missionaries who go out into the various states and discuss party policies in an effort to convince voters of the worth of their candidates. And the Republican National Committee, recognizing this truth, has given particular attention to this phase of its activities.

In selecting Representative Everett Sanders, of Terre Haute, Ind., as director of the Republican Speakers' Bureau, the National Committee made a splendid choice. He has proved by his activity in the House during eight years of service that he has all the qualifications essential to this work.

In his first campaign Representative Sanders contested against ally bound to cast their votes for a certain specified candidate. On the ballot appear a group of electors for each party and above each group are presented the names of the Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates to whom that group is pledged. The voter then marks his ballot for the electors pledged to the candidates he favors. The electors are originally selected by the delegates to the state party conventions held before the election.

The result of the election is known in at most a few days after the polls close, usually in a few hours, by the number of electoral college voters pledged to each candidate. The electoral college, however, does not vote for several weeks.

Each state has as many electors as it has congressmen and senators. On the Saturday preceding the second Monday in January the electors meet in each state capital and organize. They then cast their ballots for the candidates to whom they have been pledged. Violation of the moral obligation to vote in accordance with that pledge is rare.

After the formal vote is taken Washington is then officially notified of the result—ordinarily about two months after the President-elect has received the congratulations of the defeated. From each state the notification goes out in three ways, by telegraph, by mail and by a special messenger who carries the sealed ballots to Washington.

In 120 the popular vote for President was as follows: Harding, Republican, 16,152,200; Cox, Democrat, 9,147,353; Watkins, Prohibition, 189,408; Debs, Socialist, 991,799; Christensen, Farmer-Labor, 255,411. Of the 531 electoral votes, 404 were cast for Harding and 127 for Cox.

Now with more than two candidates for President there is always, in theory at least, the possibility that no candidate will receive the majority of the total number of electoral votes which is necessary for an election. As a matter of fact it has only happened twice in the past. But if it does happen, what then?

On Feb. 11 the Senate and House will meet together to count the electoral votes which were sent to them in January. This they will do whether there is a deadlock or not. If a President has been elected, Congress will issue a formal declaration of the fact. If it should happen that no candidate has received a majority of the electoral votes the two houses would separate.

The House of Representatives would then proceed "immediately" to choose a President, making the selection from the three presidential candidates who received the largest number of electoral votes. If there are more than three candidates who received electoral votes the low man or men would be dropped.

Now suppose the House also failed to elect. The XII amendment to the Constitution provides that "if the House of Representatives shall not Jefferson to the chief place and Aaron Burr to the second, they failed to do either, because each man received the same number of votes, 73 each." John Adams received 65 and C. C. Pinckney of South Carolina, 64.

The election thus went into the House, where the Federalists struggled to elect Burr. For a week the House voted and 35 ballots were cast before the deadlock was broken and Jefferson was elected. In speaking of the deadlock in the electoral college in 1800, Edward Stanwood in his "A History of the Presidency," says:

"The danger that the will of the people might be frustrated by the selection of an inferior man as President, was fully revealed by the election of 1800. It will be remembered that it was to prevent this very occurrence that the convention of 1787 had adopted the device of a vote for equal numbers of electors."

The 12th Amendment, ratified in 1804, provided that: "The electors shall meet in their respective states and vote by ballot for the President and Vice President, one of whom at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President and in distinct ballots the person voted for as Vice President."

In 1824 the election again went into the House. Political parties had disappeared and there were four candidates, John Quincy Adams, Henry Clay, William H. Crawford and Andrew Jackson. Each nominee received the votes of his own section and practically no more. As a result no one polled a majority of the electoral votes.

Once again there was lively campaigning in Washington to win votes in the House. In favor of Jackson it was urged that he had received more of the people's votes than any other nominee and so was entitled to the election even if he had not received a majority. The controversy grew more and more bitter.

On Feb. 2 the House galleries were crowded with eager spectators. The vote of the Electoral College was announced, no President had been elected, but John C. Calhoun had been elected vice president. It was stated that the House would at once begin to ballot for President.

On the first ballot Adams was elected, receiving 13 votes, while his two opponents had 11 between them, seven for Jackson and four for Crawford. Clay, who had been eliminated, as the other three were the high men on the electoral vote, aided in the election of Adams and later was appointed by him secretary of state.

The Tilden-Hayes election has been called the only disputed election in our history. The issue here was entirely different from that involved in the election troubles of 1800 and 1824, which were due to failure to secure a majority of the electoral vote. In this election both Republicans and Democrats claimed to have carried Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida and from each state two sets of returns went to Washington.

On Nov. 7, 1876, the election of Tilden, the Democratic candidate, had been announced in newspaper stories, although one paper declared the election was in doubt. On the following day the Republicans claimed the election. On the face of the returns Tilden had been elected, 205 electoral votes to 155 for Hayes. In addition he had a plurality of 250,000 in the popular vote. But it was claimed that if the Southern had not been "persuaded" from going to the polls, Tilden could not have been elected.

On Jan. 30 an electoral commission was appointed. It decided in favor of Hayes, the members voting on strict party line. The judgment of the commission was adopted by Congress and Hayes became President.

Chats with your GAS man

In one of his works Rupert Brooke, the poet, refers to "the benison of hot water." He appreciated its value as a healing, cleansing agent and as one of the necessities of life.

Abundant hot water running fresh from the faucets is one of humanity's blessings made available to all of us because of gas service and modern heating equipment. It is a dependable, economical service assuring you of hot water on tap at all hours.

Heating water by the tea kettle method is drudgery. It is also costly. Furthermore, you are wasting money if you believe that an extra coil in a furnace or stove heats your water for nothing. Discard such practices and let us show you the gas way of heating water. All information, gladly furnished.

SEARS TO MEET
TOMMY FRENCH

Al Sears of East Boston is booked for the Bellevue Club for the main bout in this city next week when he is slated to go ten rounds with Tommy French of Somersworth. Sears who has the distinction of having been decorated for bravery during the world war, is a lad who has been fighting main bouts in many of the cities of New England. He has decisions over some of the best of the welterweights and his manager predicts that he will take the tough Somersworth lad's measure long before the ten rounds are finished. French is a tough boy for anybody to dispose of and can be depended upon to give a great show.

Kewpie Roy of Manchester and Frankie Gray of Nashua are booked for the six round semi-final and Roy's work here in the past has stamped him as a willing worker who fights all of the time and Gray has the same reputation in Nashua and Manchester where he has frequently appeared. Some good preliminaries are booked.

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Listen To The Band!

They have put brilliant color into our hosiery. They have put brilliant color into our handkerchiefs. They have put brilliant color into our belts. They have put brilliant color into our golf stockings. They have put brilliant color into our sweaters. They have put brilliant color even into our, hitherto, humble suspenders and garters. There is only one spot left to put brilliant color, and they have put it there, too—our hat bands.

Soon, a man's dress may vie with a woman's in colorful brightness, for the motto of the day is, "Swat The Gloom!" Up to recently, you could only express your taste and personality in the patterns of shirts and cravats. The rest of a man's clothes were like a sombre background stretching beyond the spotlight. Now, instead of laying on color with a camel's hair brush, you may put it on with a spade.

There is, though, an obvious danger in the employment of too many color spots in men's dress, for unless, harmoniously chosen, they hiss and spit at one another like a brace of cats. Therefore, choose colors carefully. Be sure that they match or contrast engagingly and effectively, or let them alone.

However, color is wholly appropriate upon the band of a slam-down sporting hat of the sort reproduced here. Field, country and knockabout impose few, if any, limitations in the use of vivid hues, for you have the green of the turf; the blue of the sky; the purple of the hills and the crimson or orange of the sunset to act as a foil for the boldest effects. The sportsman is traditionally indulgent to "cheerful" colors. He is out for fun, not out at a function, and he is a-tingle with the spirit of "Glad I'm Alive!" and "It's A Good Old World!"

Therefore, light-weight felt hats with brim turned down and encircled with brilliantly striped ribbons in college, club, regimental or blazer colors are smart, if held to their place and purpose—the open spaces.

BLUE LAWS AT ONE TIME PROHIBITED KISSING

Washington, Oct. 30.—Blue laws and blue law advocates are almost as old as this country, according to Charles S. Longacre, national secretary of the Religious Liberty Association, with which is affiliated the Atlantic Religious Liberty Association, with headquarters at South Lancaster, Mass.

Mr. Longacre has established, at least to his own satisfaction, that in those rigid days of the New England Puritans, a man who kissed his wife on Sunday was very likely to land in the stocks. Prohibition was unknown then, but the blue law supporters had other interesting activities. Here is what Mr. Longacre has to say about it: "Blue law advocates deny that any laws forbidding a husband to kiss his wife on Sunday were ever enacted by the New England colonies. In looking up the historic and legal facts on this point, we have found the following statute enacted in 1658 by the New Haven colony:

"If any man shall kiss his wife or wife kiss her husband on the Lord's day, the party in fault shall be punished at the discretion of the court of magistrates."

"This law is taken from 'Massachusetts Sunday Laws Together with Old Time Blue Laws from the Records of Mass. and Conn.' published in 1887 by the Dwight Printing Company, Springfield, Mass.

"We have also found in looking up the records of the Boston court of the Massachusetts Bay colony that a Sunday blue law was passed in that colony 'prohibiting unseemly and lascivious conduct on Sunday,' and we have found that under this statute the court records of Boston disclose that two sea captains were fined and put in the stocks for kissing their wives as they greeted them on Sunday morning, upon their return from an extended trip to Europe.

"It is useless for the blue Sunday law advocates to deny the facts of history and of the law.

"There were blue laws in ye olden time, and there are blue law advocates with us even today."

son the hall was elaborately decorated with orange and black crepe paper festooned about the windows, the balcony and stage. The lights were shaded with the same colors with clusters of red ears of corn and black cats fashioned of card board were fastened on the ends of streamers. Jack-o-lanterns ran across the balcony over the stage. Branches of autumnal foliage and evergreen boughs were arranged about the walls and stacks of corn stalks tied with orange and black ribbon stood on either side of the stage.

The guests of honor from Manchester at the gathering were Horace Roby, district supervisor; William McLaughlin, Commercial Superintendent; Mr. McIntyre, assistant commercial superintendent; and Roy Gould, plant engineer. There were also operators from several surrounding towns present.

The hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Tilley, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Roberts and they received their guests most cordially and did all possible to add to the pleasure of the evening's festivities.

Marden's Orchestra furnished music and the up-to-date and well rendered selections were a pleasure to the dancers and the floor was filled throughout the evening. The telephone operators never do things by halves and their party was filled with enjoyment for all. The novelties were orange balls, these being pop corn balls covered with orange crepe paper taffy dolls dressed in orange and black crepe paper and streamers and confetti added to the merriment of the evening. Miss Zyltha Woods gave a graceful solo dance which all enjoyed and she was well applauded. At intermission refreshments of ice cream and home made cake were served.

The committee in charge was Miss Dorothy Bines, chairman of the decorating committee; Mrs. George E. Knott of the refreshment committee and Miss Margaret Scott, chairman of the novelty committee. All worked untiring to make the affair a brilliant success and the committee received many compliments on their efforts.

BOY DISCOVERS HOUSE AFIRE

No One in Building When Blaze Breaks Out in the Ell

The timely discovery of a fire at the home of Joseph Kaminski on South street by a boy on Wednesday afternoon saved the house from total destruction. The fire broke out around a chimney in the rear and had burned considerable before a still alarm brought the firemen.

None of the family were in the house at the time. Two tanks from the chemical engine failed to check the fire and the firemen had to use a stream from a hydrant. The fire is thought to have started from a defective chimney. The loss is about $500.

BRIDGE TEA IS GREAT SUCCESS

Portsmouth College Club Holds Interesting Event at Woman's Building

The Bridge Tea of the Portsmouth College Club on Wednesday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock at the Woman's Building on Middle street proved not only a brilliant social affair but $126 was realized for the club scholarship fund. Fifty tables were occupied and bridge and mah jong were played and although upper rooms as well as lower were opened also for the occasion the house could not accommodate all and an overflow party of eight tables was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Smith on Middle street.

The following were the patronesses of the affair:

Mrs. Frederick E. Potter, Mrs. Henry E. Hovey, Mrs. Douglas E. Dismukes, Mrs. Jeremy Waldron, Miss Frances Goodwin, Mrs. Arthur Curtis, Mrs. Harold Smith, Mrs. Albion J. Warren, Mrs. Mary I. Wood, Mrs. Edwin C. Blaisdell, Mrs. William Marvin, Mrs. Arthur P. Nazlo, Miss Mary Stearns Heflinger, Mrs. Albert O. Shaw, Mrs. Norwood Souter.

The afternoon was filled with social interest and at the conclusion of the playing the favors were awarded as follows: Bridge—first, Mrs. E. C. Blaisdell; second, Mrs. Albert Hislop; third, Mrs. Frank Massey; fourth, Mrs. Charles E. Trafton; fifth, Mrs. Dewey Green; sixth, Mrs. Julius Dutton; seventh, Mrs. Ralph Wood.

Mah jong—first, Mrs. J. D. Carly; second, Mrs. Horace P. Montgomery. The favors were very handsome and donated by the following: Oriental Store, Hassett's Music Store, G. B. French Co., Allison's Drug Store, M. P. Alkon, Adams' Drug Store, Mrs. F. W. Wheeler and the Portsmouth Flower Shop.

Tea and delicious home made cake was served from a table attractively set with silver and china and beautified with calendulas and candle sticks holding white candles. Mrs. Douglas E. Dismukes and Mrs. C. T. Owens presided here in a charming manner. Young women high school students assisted in serving.

The affair was in general charge of Dr. Martha Boger Shattuck, Mrs. D. T. Trautman, Mrs. Justin French, Miss Loretta Hassett, Mrs. L. E. Stowe, Miss Margaret Ballard, Mrs. William Safford Jones, the president, and the officers of the club were untiring in their effort to have the party a success. They are most grateful to all who aided in any way and especially to those who donated the favors. Portsmouth gave evidence that it was proud of what this club, which cal' girls to obtain a college education, and it appeal for aid to help carry on the work caused much interest in the undertaking and all were gratified with the results.
